The Early and Elegant Origins of Ghosting

Hi

What really separates one tribe from the next? More than ever we share knowledge, music, cuisine, culture, life. We cover our space rock with an existence that is, fundamentally, identical. We all need food, water, shelter and rest. Everything else is optional – subject to circumstance and opinion. One Earth, one tribe.

Discontent being expressed publicly, and collectively, in China Protesters Scoff At “Foreign Forces” Accusations

" Chinese protesters shot down insinuations that their demonstrations this past week were controlled by shadowy “foreign forces,” a tactic often used by the state and its defenders to strip dissent of its legitimacy. "

“Can’t go abroad, can’t go on overseas [news] networks, how do we communicate with foreign forces!” ”

Grocery Stores Throw Out Edible Food The lie of “expired” food and the food waste problem

" Researchers have found that “expiration” dates – which rarely correspond to food actually expiring or spoiling – are mostly well-intentioned, but haphazard and confusing. Put another way, they’re not expiration dates at all. "

" ...changing the way we allow food to be donated and distributed through food banks and other means. That requires a shift in how we think. If everyone is eating food past its “freshness” date – understanding that the food is perfectly safe but may not be at its absolute peak condition – then there will be less hesitancy about giving that food away,..." So much happens in a year TIME's Top 100 Photos of 2022

" It’s different this time. That was the sentiment humming in the background, and sometimes roaring quite loudly, throughout 2022. It’s what was said when young people started rising up in the streets of Iran in support of women’s rights; when the first Russian tanks rolled into Ukraine; when millions of people showed up to vote to send a country in a new direction. "

December 9, 1979 Smallpox Disease Successfully Eradicated

Wiki Rabbit Hole

A disease that was once common throughout the world, caused millions of deaths and disfigured even more, no longer exists.

At this moment smallpox remains the only human disease that has been successfully eradicated.

Time travel still considered impossible What’s the real reason you can’t go faster than the speed of light?

" The real reason you cannot travel through space faster than light is because you are always traveling through spacetime at the speed of light. "

" On the bright side, now that you know about spacetime, the next time your boss gets on your case for just sitting there, you can tell them that they are being unreasonable. You’re moving as fast as possible. "

Disagree and go to jail Indonesia’s sex ‘morality’ laws are part of a chilling crackdown on dissent

“ What is being obscured by the discussion of the moralistic aspects is the fact that there is legislation that now that limits significantly the room for protests and criticism. ”

“ The effect is the same: it intimidates opponents, it chills dissent, because it increases the risk of being thrown in prison for your political opinions

This is kind of amazing The tortoise, the myth, the legend: Jonathan turns 190

" Jonathan has lived through multiple human milestones, including the first photograph of a person (1838), the invention of the first incandescent lightbulb (1878), the Wright Brother’s first flight (1903), and more, according to Guinness World Records. "
